College W P Enrollment Increases

Elko Community College's Spring Semester 1973 enrollment shows an increase of 55 students over the Spring 1972 figure, college officials announced today.

The college spokesman said that the 1973 total figure is 427 students, compared last spring's total figure of 372, at both the extension centers and on the main campus.

This semester's total includes 335 students registered for credit courses on the main campus.

ECC Enrollment Shows Gain Compared To Fall of 1971

Is Elko Community College alive and kicking? Yes, says Gary Kramer, director of student personnel at the college, we are very much alive and growing. Compared to last fall's enrollment of 611 students, the College has registered over 640 students this term. A comparative analysis with last year's fall term reveals that ECC's enrollment has consistently maintained itself. For example, last fall 118 students registered on the campus on the first day; this fall we had 117. Last fall we had 65 students register late; this fall there were 94. As of September 20, 1971 we had 242 students on campus; this fall by the same date we had 252 students.

And, since late September, of 1972 ECC's enrollment has steadily increased to its present headcount, mainly because of the continuous course offerings.

A quick analysis of this Fall's enrollment accounts for over 180 students registered for courses at ECC's three extension centers.

Ely	95
Winnemucca	79
Wells	9

registered for courses in liberal arts, vocational-technical and community service programs.

Adult Education is stronger than ever this fall with an enrollment of 182 students in such courses as Basque Language, Rocks & Gems, English as a Second Language and Emergency Medical Training, to name a few.

Matriculating or degree seeking students appears to be moving upward. Last year's graduating class consisted of 26 students; the graduating class for 1973 should have approximately 35 to 40 students earning degrees in Liberal Arts, Agriculture, Business, Electronics, Law Enforcement and others. The Class of 1974 should be even larger if the current trend continues.

What about ECC's future? Bright and prosperous says Mr. Kramer, however it is important to note that even though the college is growing, it is not destined to become a very large post secondary institution. At least not according to the State Master Plan which reveals an increase in enrollment of roughly 10 per cent for each year up to 1980. Based on the population of counties for which the Community Colleges of Nevada serve, Elko county and other counties in Northeastern Nevada cannot possibly provide the students as do the larger counties of Clark and Washoe. Needless to say, Elko Community College will remain a small two-year comprehensive college designed to serve the needs of the counties in northeastern Nevada.

And it seems that there are advantages to a comparatively small enrollment for it allows Elko Community College to capitalize on promulgating learning by taking into account individual needs and the unique characteristics of its student body.

Head Start Plans Survey In Elko Area

The Elko Head Start program will conduct a door-to-door survey in Elko early next month to help locate children age one through seven, with a particular emphasis on finding those children eligible for increased Head Start services, according to Dan Mooney, chairman of the Head Start board of directors.

Annette Redant, a student at Elko Community College, has been appointed as the Head Start representative to complete the survey, he said.

Mooney said that following the survey, a re-evaluation of the Head Start program will be made so that the program can meet the needs of the community more completely without an increase in costs.

Mooney said, "the use of federal funds should be tied more closely to the actual needs of the community with increased community control and input. I think that the re-evaluation program will get the local Head Start program closer to that goal and will provide increased fiscal accountability on the local level."

Large Growth In Community College Count

In its second year of existence, student enrollment in the Community College Division of the University of Nevada has more than doubled.

At the end of the first week of registration, the three colleges showed a total enrollment of 4,003 students, which would reduce to 1,449 fulltime equated students.

These figures compare with a total enrollment last year of 1,601, which reduced to 582 full-time equated students.

Clark County Community College showed the largest increase, with 1,766, which reduces to 813 fulltime equated students.

Western Nevada Community College (WNCC) showed 1,914, reducing to 509 fulltime equated students. These figures include 902 students, equivalent to 141 full-time students, enrolled in the Washoe County School District Community Education Division. The figures do not include all the students from WNCC outlying centers in the surrounding eight counties.

Registration in the Community Education Division is continuous throughout the year as the class offerings expand.

Only Elko Community College showed a decline in enrollment, with 323, which equals 127 fulltime students. These figures only include figures from the Elko campus and do not include students from the centers in the five northeastern counties.

Crafts, Drawing To Be Taught At ECC By Sarah Campsey

Beginning Crafts 291 and Intermediate Drawing 201 will be offered at Elko Community College during the fall semester. Sarah Campsey will be the instructor. The crafts class will meet from 7-10 p.m. on Monday nights, beginning September 11. The drawing class will be held from 7-10 p.m. Wednesdays, beginning August 30.

Intermediate drawing will emphasize anatomy and construction of the human figure. A thorough study of bones, muscles and ethnic structural differences will be complemented by live models.

The crafts class will feature découpage, wood and stone carving, Macrame, tie-dye, batik, furniture refinishing of small items, and an introduction to other crafts and decorating tips.

Mrs. Campsey states arts and crafts have from the beginning of time been the self-expression of the few who decorate the person, the home, and public gathering places. "Until recently," she adds, "fashions in wearing apparel and home furnishings were dictated by these few. Their specific tastes were reflected in the homes of the masses."

More recently, she continues, the trend is toward self-expression with the attitude "do your own thing." "Every person has an avenue of expression open to him if he seeks it."

It is with the purpose of discovering that self-expression that these classes in art are being offered this fall.

Each course carries three hours' credit. There will be a $4.00 lab fee in addition to the regular tuition. College registration: Tuesday, August 29, 8:30 a.m.-8:30 p.m.

Mr. Robert Babb presented a timely topic on The Need for Technicians in Elko County.

Dr. Charles Donnelly, President of the Community College Division, was the keynote speaker. His message centered on the need for Elko Community College in Northeastern Nevada.

The faculty and administration from Elko Community College and the counselors from Northeastern Nevada spent the entire day together, having lunch and touring the new campus under construction at the close of the workshop.

Registration
 Shows Drop
 At University

Initial registration of regular students at the University of Nevada, Reno, is down about 2 per cent from last year, but officials say the start of school before Labor Day may account for some of the drop.

Dr. Jack Shirley, registrar and director of admissions, reported that 6,052 regular students enrolled during the first two days of registration, compared with 6,192 during the first two days last year.

"Since the university has changed to an early semester beginning in August, the late registrants are expected to be as numerous, or perhaps even more, than last year when 861 regular degree students enrolled late," Shirley said.

He noted that late registration is open until Sept. 11. He said the late registration fee will be waived until Sept. 5, because of the new semester calendar this year.

Shirley reported the number of nondegree students registering the first two days dropped to 245 from 315 at the same time last year. He said this probably indicates a shifting in enrollment within the university system from UNR to the Community College division.

The registrar said universities nationally are showing a slackening in enrollment growth because of the easing of draft requirements and the rising costs of higher education.

Police Personnel Can Get Loans To Attend College

If you are employed full-time as a police officer, correctional officer, court officer, planning officer, federal officer (certain employees) or as supportive personnel the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration will provide a grant for you to attend college while you work.

Or, if you are a full-time student in a program leading to a degree in a program of study directly related to law enforcement, you may be eligible for a loan.

The Law Enforcement Education Program (LEEP) is designed to help meet the criminal justice system's critical need for well-educated professionals to fill a variety of important positions.

Two types of financial assistance are offered under the LEEP program: loans up to $1800 per academic year; and grants of up to $300 per semester. The money does not have to be repaid if recipients fulfill service in the criminal justice field. All grants and loans for this area are administered by Northern Nevada Community College.

Now the opportunity is here for you to begin, continue or complete the degree that perhaps has been out of reach for some time.

For further information contact Gary Kramer, Northern Nevada Community College, phone 738-8493.

Medical Care Class To Be Offered

Applications are now available for an 80 hour emergency medical care course which will be offered to persons in northeastern Nevada beginning in September.

A spokesman noted those who complete the course will qualify as emergency medical technicians, which are similar to paramedics.

Applications may be obtained at Elko Community College and at the Elko Fire Department, and must be submitted no later than Aug. 28. A registration fee of $10 includes purchase of the textbook.

The spokesman said interested persons should submit their applications early because a large number are expected and the class will be limited to 30. He added that persons who travel from towns 50 miles or more away will be eligible to receive per diem and travel reimbursement.

He noted 22 persons completed the course when it was offered last year. Many of them have served as instructors for ambulance attendants and for first aid classes in various places in northeastern Nevada.

The spokesman said Dr. Thomas Hood will supervise the instruction which will be divided among several Elko doctors. The textbook to be used was prepared by the American College of Orthopedic Surgeons.

The first call will be at 7 p.m. Sept. 12 at Elko Community College.

Elko Community College's basketball team will be in action at the Elko Junior High School gymnasium this weekend playing host to Utah Technical College from Provo for a Friday-Saturday series.

The teams will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m.; and the series will conclude at 2 p.m. on Saturday.

Elko coach Jim Spelgatti said that the team has picked four additional players with second semester registration at the school.

The new players are Buddy Jones from Arizona; Kenny Abe, Fallon; Dennis Bill, Austin; and Jay Smith.

Spelgatti noted that Elko met the Utah school in Provo two weeks ago where the Cowboys dropped both games.

Probable starters for the Cowboys are Howard Wright, Danny Kessler, Kim Palmer, Ross Worthington and Ralph Johnson.

In connection with this weekend's games, the student body at the college has issued a challenge to the local civic clubs, churches, companies to see what group can have the largest attendance at the games. A prize will be given to the winning group.

The purpose is two-fold, a college spokesman said, the challenge will enable the local basketball fans to watch the team in action and become involved in the local school spirit and will give the team the support it needs in competing with visiting squads.

By Doug Harper
Rangely College emerged as the only winner of the Elko Community College Invitational basketball Tournament has won, as the Colorado team on the championship for the second time in the two year history of the event.
The Spartans downed Western Nevada Community College, 83-1, in the tournament finals Saturday night in the junior high gymnasium. In the consolation game, Treasure Valley Community College edged Elko Community College, 84-81.
The only time Western Nevada was ahead was when it cored the opening basket to lead 2-0. Mick Richards then cored three consecutive baskets as Rangely jumped ahead to lead behind Richard's hot hand and led 15-6 after the first five minutes.
The Wildcats managed only two more baskets during the next five minutes as Rangely built a 23-10 lead at the midway point of the first half.
Western Nevada remained cold going into the 15 minute mark and was down 31-15. The Wildcats came to life and in the next five minutes outscored the Spartans, 16-10, to trail by only 10, 41-31, at halftime.

Russell Chapman and Phil Todd led Rangely to a 51-40 lead after the first five minutes of the second half. Ruben Martin and Ken Smith paced a Wildcat scoring spree that saw them trail 62-48 at the 10 minute mark of the second half.
Rangely continued to control the game until the final five minutes.
With the Spartans ahead 72-61, Smith, Martin, and Roger Debenham led the way for Western Nevada cutting the Colorado team's lead to six points, 77-71, with 1:53 left. Martin then made a free throw and with exactly one minute left, Rangely led by only five. Randy Hodges and Jim Keating each scored a basket for the Spartans to pull them out of trouble. The Wildcats were hampered when Martin fouled out.
Todd and Richards paced Rangely with 21 points each while Chapman scored 17 and pulled down several rebounds.
The Wildcat's Martin was the game's high point man with 22 while Smith added 20, Debenham scored 18, and John Rosa had 12.
Treasure Valley had all but one player enter the scoring column in defeating Elko, although the Oregon squad had to fight off a valiant comeback by the Cowboys.

Carroll Palmer paced Treasure Valley to a fast lead over the host team, which could manage only seven points in the first five minutes. Howard Wright and Lee Bitton then paced Elko back to within five, 24-19, after 10 minutes had gone by.
Morris Grigg and Palmer continued hitting for Treasure Valley, while Dan Kessler, Don McBride and Howard Wright pulled Elko within five again, 47-42, at halftime.
Wright started the second half off hot but Anthony Perkins and John Inferera pushed the Oregon team ahead by 11, 59-48, with only five minutes gone by Treasure Valley held on to the lead and led 72-62 midway in the period.
In the final 10 minutes Elko began to hit and was down by only six, 78-72, with five minutes to play. Don McBride scored on a lay-in with 3:27 left to pull Elko back to 78-75. Fourteen seconds later Ross Worthington hit on a jumper to put Elko behind by only one, 78-77; Perkins and Grigg each hit for Treasure Valley, but Kim Palmer, scored with 50 seconds left to make it 82-79.
Inferera then hit for two free throwers and Jon Black added another to insure the victory for Treasure Valley.

Report

By Charles Greenhaw
Elko Community College

1-24-73

On the Campus: Dr. Elmer Kuntz' article on the use of census data for planning vocational programs in communities and schools has been published in the "Journal of Industrial Teacher Education"... Russ Lundgren's Elko Boxing Club won three matches, lost two, and was homered once last weekend at Stewart... Several ECC instructors will help kickoff the planning for a satellite communications experiment involving Nevada and other western states. A regional meeting of the Federation of Rocky Mountain States, initiators of the project, will be held in Elko on Jan. 25. Frank Anderson, an official of the federation, will outline the project, which will concentrate on early childhood and career education... Glen Atkinson, UNR prof in economics, was at ECC a few days ago enlisting the help of local instructors for a spring forum dealing with access to the legal system. One panel, involving a lawyer, instructors and persons from the Indian community, will be held at the museum on April 6. Another panel is scheduled on May 4...

ECC people and other Elkoans are invited by Fran Turner, speech and drama prof at College of Southern Idaho, to a performance by the National Theater of the Deaf on Feb. 10 at CSI. The distinguished Broadway troupe will perform the ancient Babylonian epic "Gilgamesh," composed before 2,000 B.C. You're also invited to an afternoon workshop preceding the performance. The workshop's at 2 p.m., the performance at 8 p.m. ... The ECC basketballers are now being coached by Jim Spelgatti, at least for home games. Since Jim, a high school instructor, can't make the road trips, President Kuntz is the Cowboy leader away from home... Lois Mintun, who worked for several years in the registrar's office at UNR, is the new admissions secretary at ECC.

Exes: Dave Crump, student here in '71-'72, is studying at UNR and plans a career in medical science. Mable Kite, '72 grad and ECC's outstanding scholar that year, is well along toward a degree at UNR.

Coming Up: In case you've got the January wearies and would like to get out where people and things will be hopping, there are several excitements in the offing. The second annual ECC Invitational will bring together some pretty fair teams, including Rangely from Colorado, Treasure Valley College, Western Nevada Community College, and the Cowboys on Jan. 26 and 27. The tournament is co-sponsored by the Elko Chamber of Commerce, whose board of directors will furnish the trophies. This will mark the first appearance of another Nevada community college team locally... The spring semester begins on Tuesday, Jan. 30, with registration the day before. A few highlights: Bob Babb, who is about the most full-time part-time teacher around, will offer technical drafting, surveying, blueprint reading, and construction. Phyllis Vogeler will teach courses in nutrition and clothing construction. Doug Cox has planned a 5-week course in bookkeeping and also a class on income tax preparation. Dorothy Call will teach retail merchandising and small business management. In addition, there are courses in heredity, Indians of North America, literature of American Indians, Shakespeare. And they go on and on.

On the Campus: This week ECC is hosting the annual Statewide Adult Basic Education (ABE) conference. The state supervisor of the program, Jerry Nielsen, from the vocational branch of the state department of education, and coordinators from all areas of the state are getting together in Elko to evaluate this year's program and to plan strategies for next year's. In addition, some of the coordinators will be looking at the role of basic education in the state's fledgling community colleges. In this area, as in others, ECC has been a testing ground.

The key words in ABE are "adult" and "basic." The program targets at uneducated and undereducated adults who need to acquire basic skills in math, reading, and English so that they can qualify for jobs or for vocational training. Since the ECC project was commenced a few years ago, several hundred adults have participated. This year alone more than 200 have enrolled in instruction at the ECC learning center and in classes at Owyhee, Wells, and at the Elko Indian colony.

It is not easy to conduct or to evaluate an ABE program, especially so since educational levels and needs of individual students vary widely. An ABE instructor may face, in one class, students who are totally illiterate, students who don't speak English, and students who are almost ready to qualify for high school equivalency certificates. In addition, there are some adults who simply want to learn to spell or to refresh themselves in fractions so that their working lives will be more comfortable. Instruction, therefore, has to be tailored to individual needs and levels. If it isn't, the ABE student probably won't return. Typically, he is highly motivated to learn basic skills, but he's not a captive student who will tolerate much nonsense.

Some general observations can be made about the ECC project. It has helped a number of people gain skill levels so that they can enter vocational programs. For example, several persons in the current LPN class have benefited from ABE classes. It has helped several non-readers learn to read and poor readers to read better. This year, for instance, at least fifteen persons, formerly non-readers all, have learned to read at levels ranging from grade two to six; and there are many others, particularly 40 or more Spanish speakers, whose lives have been enriched in ABE classes. Also, the program has helped many people obtain high school equivalency certificates, although this is not, strictly speaking, one of its legal functions.

In other ways, quite apart from individual successes, the results of the ECC program are heartening and will unquestionably be of practical value to the other community colleges. We have learned, for example, that the community college, more than other educational institutions, can be more flexible in providing instruction for undereducated adults. We have learned also that instructional materials used in ABE programs are of great value in remedial classes for regular college students (thus costly duplication can be avoided). We have learned more about how to individualize instruction; that is, how to recognize a person's needs and his level and to gear instruction accordingly.

These and other matters will be topical at the ABE conference this week.

★ . . . INCIDENTALLY

I heaved a sigh of relief over the weekend when the senate passed the assembly bill appropriating $134,000 to the Northern Nevada Community College to be used for furnishing and landscaping the two new college buildings erected in Elko.

No money for either furnishings or landscaping was appropriated in 1971 when the building funds were authorized and the university system, which was charged with furnishing the two structures failed to come up with the funds. Now if the governor will sign the bill the local college will be in business at their new location starting next fall.

Thirty-five students will exhibit more than 250 items in an art show at Elko Community College, Eighth and Court Streets, on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, 1-4 p.m.

The students are enrolled in art classes taught at the college by Sarah Campsey.

On exhibit will be various art works including woodcarving, lithography, pen and ink, block printing, macrame, batik, tie dye, decoupage, crackle craft, three-dimensional, dry flowers, harvest boxes, refinished furniture, stone and clay sculpture, foil craft and glass cutting.

Several items will be on sale, and would make unique gifts for graduation or other special occasions, Mrs. Campsey stated.

The exhibit will also be open starting at 8 p.m. Sunday during this year's Reader's Theater, "Spoon River Anthology," which is held in conjunction with the college's award night.

Some of the unusual items on display during the two-day show will be "juntiques," rescued and creatively recycled into decorative crafts by Mrs. Campsey; cedar chest refinished and wood carved by Bobbi Dodd and Gary Prunty; macrame items with handmade beads by Lee Breitenstein and stained glass objects by Pat Sheehan. Also on exhibit will be a woodcarved eagle by Sue Aguirre, batiks by Barry Hensler and pen and ink cartoons by Kevin Dreesi. As part of a study in anthropology, Dan Baumgardner has sculpted heads for the show.

The public is invited to attend.

UNLV Choir Sets Elko Appearances

The University of Nevada, Las Vegas Chamber Singers under the direction of Dr. Douglas R. Peterson, will perform a concert of sacred and secular music at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Elko Community College.

The public is invited to the free concert.

Tuesday morning, the Chamber Singers will sing at an assembly at Elko High School starting at 9:25.

The 22-voice singing group is making its first tour of Nevada through a grant by the Nevada State Council on the Arts. In addition to the Elko appearances, the Chamber Singers will perform concerts and high school programs in Tonopah, Ely, Winnemucca, Carson City, and Zephyr Cove.

Prior to starting the Nevada tour, the UNLV Chamber Singers sang at the Western Division Music Educators National Conference in Tucson, Arizona, on March 1.

Last January, the singing group performed at the Civic Music Center in Los Angeles as part of the Twenty-Fifth Annual International Folk Festival.

Lighter music by the Chamber Singers includes folk songs, sea chanteys, spirituals, and selections from "Man of La Mancha."

ECC TO OBSERVE EARTH WEEK IN APRIL

Earth Week 1973 has been announced by Senator Gaylord Nelson (D. Wis.) as being held nationwide from April 9-15.

Dr. David Emerson, biology instructor at Elko Community College has been appointed as the local chairman for the Community College.

Elko Community College Report

By Charles Greenhaw
Elko Community College

On the Campus: Next week is Vocational Education Week in Nevada. Before long, an award will be announced for the state's outstanding vocational educator. This and other activities sponsored by the Nevada Vocational Association are supposed to make the public aware of the programs that help to keep this society going — programs in which you learn to build and wire houses, type and file, make dresses and bake brownies, fix cars, grow hay and distribute food, train children and pets — in a word, to live.

At ECC, the week will be kicked off early by showing two movies this Wednesday evening beginning at 7:15 p.m. in the gym. You're invited gratis. You might want to bring along a youngster, for one of the films outlines futures in career education in an age when the "sputnik craze" is dead and educational emphasis has shifted to careers in business, agriculture, distribution, health fields, and technical areas that don't require four years of college.

The other movie, "Why Man Creates," is a delightful and informative teaser about man and progress. It's probably more entertaining, and certainly more educational, than anything you are likely to see on the tube Wednesday evening. Both films come to us via the State Department of Education.

Vocational Week is the occasion when old and trite facts are widely reiterated, though sometimes forgotten. To wit: 80 per cent of the jobs in this society go to the "doers," as opposed to the "thinkers," if you will pardon a simplistic distinction. A community's professionals, those who certify themselves with university degrees, and indispensable; but no community functions without those who cook and bake, protect and nurse, build and repair. Think, if you will, how many persons you meet daily who are technicians without whose skills our kind of life would be unthinkable.

Another trite, though no less truthful, fact about vocational education is that it is one of the best investments a community can make. A community's investment in vocational education, provided the career programs get more than lip-service, can be paid back manifold through well-trained technicians who become producers of the community's wealth. According to a release from the Nevada Vocational Association, the rate of return is $6 for every dollar invested. The release concludes: "The investment in vocational-technical education doesn't cost — it pays."

Vocational Week, interestingly enough, coincides with a time in the history of ECC when student interest in career programs seems to be surging. In the spring registration period just concluded, enrollment in industrial courses and in business programs has risen significantly in selected areas. Bob Babb has reported 34 students enrolled in one building construction class, and drafting and surveying are very popular this spring. Also, Dorothy Call was surprised to find 23 students signing up for a class in small business management, the highest number ever for that course.

Coming Up: If funds requested for the next fiscal year are approved, ECC will become much more aggressive in vocational-technical education. Some things to look for: the automotive and ag-mechanics shop will have up-to-date equipment; the business and office occupations programs will also obtain machines representative of those used in the business world; more short-term adult education classes are in prospect. In addition, there is a good possibility that a distributive education program, involving cluster courses in marketing, finance, and business economics will get underway. Also, as ECC moves into the new buildings, vocational educators will be working hard to come up with a realistic long-range plan based on the area's needs and desires. Really, it's lovely to think about.

Basque fishermen had been sailing to the New World long before Columbus — as early as 1345, says Lane. It was Basque sailors who told Columbus that there was land over here and that he wouldn't fall off the end of the earth if he would sail west.

Lane, backed up by a forthcoming study by Jon Bilbao and Bill Douglass, Basque scholars at UNR, then went on to explain. Columbus couldn't have done it without Basques, for people from Guipuzcoa and Viscaya actually helped finance his venture. Of the three ships in the expedition, two were manned and paid for, in part, by Basques. Apparently Queen Isabella got only enough money from the sale of her jewels to finance the "Nina."

All of which shows you how distorted history becomes when the Basque viewpoint is missing. And it really can, when you think about it. Jess Lopategui, discussing problems he encountered with history, points out: "History written in English tells you that Magellan was the first man to sail around the world. But these books then say that he was killed in the Philippines. They don't tell you who led the last half of the voyage." Naturally, a Basque named Juan de Elcano finished the first world-girdling trip.

Nobody can deny, after listening to Lane, that the Basque role in civilizing the Americas was considerable. In Argentina, where Basques are most numerous in the New World, they became the world providers of canned beef and mutton, even before people started eating American lamb. As a matter of fact, the Basque people first introduced domestic sheep to the Americas, in Argentina and New Mexico.

In Argentina, the list of leaders and rulers with Basque names is impressive. In Mexico, Basques were among the conquistadores, establishing such cities as Guadalajara. Also, Basques became an early ruling aristocracy in California before statehood.

Lane then talked about the Basques in Elko County and environs. In the early 1870's a Basque cattleman named Altube came here from California and started the Spanish Ranch in the Independence Valley. Some of the older Basque people around Elko worked for him.

But it wasn't until the turn of the century that Basques discovered Elko County en masse. In those pre-world war times, when there were as many as a million and a half sheep in the county, Basques came from the Old World to be tenders and herders, to make stakes in the sheep industry. And a lot of them stayed on to give Elko a major feature in its uniqueness, a tinge of Old World civilization in the heartland of the New World West.

Exes: Russ Gier, '72 grad, will graduate this spring from Multnomah College. Bob Gier, also a '72 grad, has already received his degree from Multnomah.

Coming Up: Dick Lane's study of the Basque sheepman in the Elko area West will be placed in the county library when complete. "Basques of the American West," a soon-to-be-published major study by Bilbao and Douglass, will become a part of the Basque collection at ECC. "In a Hundred Graves," Robert Laxalt's latest book, this one dealing with the Old World Basque country, will be available soon at ECC.

Liberalized Student Financial Aid Plans Listed By Elko College

7/26/73
EI

In the past few months several significant changes have taken place in the area of student financial aids. As of the middle of this month, the college has received important guidelines to use in the operation of student financial aids for the coming year. The most important changes that have occurred are listed below.

Officials at Northern Nevada Community College feel that these changes and additions allow for more flexibility in program management, and most importantly make financial assistance more readily available to any eligible student desiring to obtain an education. In summary form, here are the changes in each program:

All programs (EOG, CWSF and NDSL)

Students enrolled half-time or more are eligible to apply (previously only full-time students were eligible).

National Direct Student Loan

Students may borrow up to $2500 for the first two years at an interest rate of 3%, which does not begin to accrue until nine months after the student has terminated his schooling — (previous loan limitations were $2,000 for the first two years). Minimum monthly payment after nine months is $30.

College Work-Study

The limitation is 15 hours of work per week during the academic periods has been removed. The student may now work as many hours as advisable in an academic week. There is no maximum on the number of hours students may work.

Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant

The amount of the grant has been increased from a maximum of $1000 per academic year to $1500. (The grant, however, cannot exceed, as in the past, one half the total amount of student financial aid provided by the institution).

The previous limitations of $9000 family income and $625 parental contribution are no longer in effect in determining eligibility.

All SEOG awards this fiscal year are initial grants.

Basic Educational Opportunity Grant

A new financial aid program. Based on a contribution to education (as determined by the application) a student may receive up to $1400 per academic year.

The Grant cannot exceed one-half of the financial need.

Basic Eligibility for the Grant:

- (1) Must be a first time enrollee in a post-high school program.
- (2) Attending school on a full-time basis.
- (3) A United States citizen or intend to become a resident.

NOTE: you are not eligible if you have attended a post-high school educational institution at any time before July 1, 1973.

(4) Completion of BEOG form.

Steps in Applying for Financial Assistance

1. Apply for Admission by contacting the Student Services Office at Northern Nevada Community College.
2. Request and complete a financial aid application, and
3. A Family Financial Statement form from the same office.
4. All financial awards are based in financial need as determined from the Family Financial Statement (this form will take approximately three weeks to process).

We hope the above information has been helpful. Further information and details obtained by calling Northern Nevada Community College, 738-8493, or stop at the Student Services Office located at 901 Elm street, Elko.

New Ag College Study Seeks Production of 'Organic' Beef

Elko Daily Press 7-26-73
A newly approved research project in the College of Agriculture, University of Nevada, Reno, is aimed at the production of "organic" beef cattle for consumers. "The banning of products like Diethylstilbestrol (DES) as cattle feedlot growth stimulators has accelerated research aimed at finding alternatives," said Dr. Curtiss Bailey, animal geneticist in UNR's Ag College.

Dr. Bailey said the work has taken two directions. One has been in the search of substitute products that will stimulate growth without any side affects which may lead to objections to their use and, the other has been in the development of "organic" beef animals. Dr. Bailey explains the latter as cattle that will perform in the feedlot as well as or better than those fed stimulators but which will require no such additives. The cattle will be bred to perform naturally in the feedlot without any kind of growth stimulant and thus might be called "organic."

The new, research project that is to be headed by Dr. Bailey deals with the "organic" cattle. A major objective will be to evaluate the combining ability of Hereford, Red Polled and Charolais sires in a systematic crossbreeding program.

"Previous research has shown that systematic crossbreeding can increase beef production per cow by a factor of 20% to 25%," Dr. Bailey notes. Moreover, he continues, research has shown that bulls are more efficient meat producers than are steers. And, in numerous tests, meat from young bulls obtained under 14 months of age has proven to be just slightly less palatable in terms of taste, tenderness, and other characteristics than steer meat. In fact, in many cases, a difference between the two is hard to establish except that the bull meat better fits today's modern concept of a leaner, less wasteful product. Some 39% of all cattle currently slaughtered in West Germany for beef are young bulls with 53% in Sweden. So bull beef has been well accepted in these and other countries.

"The project will entail integrating crossbreeding efficiencies with the bull beef concept for a total package aimed at developing a meat animal that will perform in the feedlot with the efficiencies and economic advantages of animals stimulated with such products as DES," Dr. Bailey said. He emphasized that such animals will be developed to perform without any hormonal growth stimulators.

Funds Given To Nevada Colleges

EDFP 8-1-73
WASHINGTON—Congressman Walter S. Baring, D-Nev., announced that five Nevada colleges will receive a total of $134,528 from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration as participants in the Law Enforcement Education Program.

The University of Nevada, Reno and the University of Nevada, Las Vegas have been awarded $85,800, Baring reported. In addition, Clark County Community College, Elko Community College and Western Nevada Community College will receive $38,720 in justice department funds.

The Law Enforcement Education Program is designed to help meet the criminal justice system's need for well-educated professionals.

Baring said these funds were awarded for the purpose of making grants and loans to law enforcement students attending these schools.

Elko College Drops Two

EDFP 12-13-72
Elko Community College's basketball team suffered a pair of defeats on the road last weekend, falling to Butte College in Durham, Calif.

The Butte team, defending Feather River League champions, downed the Cowboys, 98-73 on Friday night and 74-59 Saturday.

A lack of depth was listed as playing a major part in the Elko team's two defeats.

Roger Gomez led the Elko attack on Friday night with 19 points and Howard Wright added 12.

On Saturday night, Kim Palmer was high with 22 points and Ross Worthington added 18.

Ralph Johnson and Cordell Jones paced the rebounding department.

Elko Community College

Report

By Charles Greenhaw
Elko Community College

On the Campus: If ever there was any evidence needed to justify the college's new buildings, now nearing completion, the activities at Eighth and Court Streets on a recent Thursday would have convinced all but the most skeptical.

The daytime program had been orderly and quiet enough, for Thursday (with emphasis on day) is not notable for commotion. Mostly it's a day devoted to classes and labs and to teachers' conferences with individual students. Otherwise, only the afternoon merriment of 50 or more senior citizens and the noises created by the boxing club in the gym generate any unusual excitement.

That Thursday evening, however, was a different story. Outside, you were lucky to find a parking place; inside, the college had a capacity crowd. It wasn't exactly bedlam, but it was near hurlyburly.

On the top floor the crunch was particularly noticeable. One room was jammed with 50 people who had enrolled in a short-term course in landscaping and gardening, conducted by Irving Hackett and Stan Alazzi. The class had originally been scheduled at Southside, but after one meeting there everybody had concluded that the kiddie desks were intolerable over a three-hour sitting. So the class moved to the college, but the change wasn't exactly ideal. For one thing, the furnishings weren't much more comfortable. For another, in the very next room Bob Babb's enterprising construction class was getting some "hands on" activity in building. They were hammering and sawing away, and before their noises had died out at 10 p.m., the students had framed a room — had framed a room inside a room that was already crowded with drafting tables used by other classes on other evenings.

Other parts of the school were also busy. Across the hall from the landscaping class, Dr. Dave Emerson was lecturing about genetics. Down the hall, students in a much-too-small lounge were trying to play chess while dodging errant ping-pong balls or pool cues. Next door, the Reverends Cook and Lindsay were conducting a course in world religions.

On the main floor activities were moving along in high gear. The learning center was nearly filled with adult basic education students, and classes in literature and psychology were in progress. In the gym Wayne Roberts' popular horsemanship class, which has attracted half a hundred persons, was watching a film on horses. In the same gym, separated from the horsemanship class by a makeshift partition, Carol Harriman's high school drama students were attempting to practice lines from their upcoming production of "Medea."

Only the lower floor managed to avoid the crunch. Don Walker was teaching English to Spanish speakers; the journalism group was preparing another newspaper; there was a meeting in the faculty lounge; and the library was doing business as usual.

A lot of Elkoans had been to ECC that Thursday. By day and night, 400 people, if not more, had been involved in a class or activity. The community that conceived and built this college was putting itself into its college.

Coming Up: If the transition can be made smoothly and barring complications, some classes, primarily vocational programs, will be moving into the first of the new buildings around Eastertime ... On the evening of April 6, the first of a series of four panel programs involving ECC and UNR instructors and people from the community and dealing with changing concepts of ownership and private property will be held at the museum. You're invited.

Students Author Latest Issue of Society Quarterly

Two Elkoans, both students, are the authors of the latest edition of the Northeastern Nevada Historical Society Quarterly, released this week.

The feature article, written by Bruce Bartlett, a student at Northern Nevada Community College, cites the last few operating years of the narrow gauge Eureka-Nevada Railway.

The line started as the Eureka and Palisade Railroad in 1875. It was the freight line between the Central Pacific Railroad and the mining and smelting town of Eureka.

Floodwaters spelled disaster for the railroad in 1910. Two years later, after bankruptcy, the line reorganized as the Eureka-Nevada Railway. It continued under that name until its demise in 1938.

The second article was written by Linda Errecart, an Elko high school student. Her essay is concerned with the eccentric and of-time humorous activities of Pete Itaina, a colorful Elko county resident who died in 1959.

The author is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Errecart of Elko.

The quarterly is sent to historical members without charge. Copies of the publication are available for purchase at the Northeastern Nevada Museum in Elko. E I 6/21/73

Bunten Retires from State Education Post

John W. Bunten, Director of the Vocational-Technical and Adult Education Branch of the Nevada Department of Education, has retired from his post Superintendent of Public Instruction Burnell Larson announced this week.

Bunten, who served as interim president of Elko Community College during the summer of 1969 and worked to help get the school recognized as Nevada's first community college, had 32 years of service to Nevada education.

He has accepted an assignment with the U.S. Office of Education, Region IX, San Francisco, where he will be Senior Program Officer for Adult, Vocational and Technical Education. He will continue to serve Nevada in that post.

Bunten has enjoyed a long and distinguished career in education in Nevada. After his graduation from Utah State University with a degree in Vocational Education, he accepted his first teaching position as vocational agriculture instructor of high school youth and adults in Overton in 1939. He returned to teach in Overton after serving five years in the Army during World War II. In 1949, he was appointed State Supervisor for Vocational Education with the State Department of Education and advanced to the position of State Director in 1950.

During these years Bunten often served in dual capacities. For nearly 10 years, he acted as a part-time teacher in agricultural education at the University of Nevada, Reno.

College Made Up of Numerous Givers

1972-3
By Charles Greenhaw

A college is, among other things, a thing with friends. They range from janitors to giants. Little Elko Community College has been made better, and bigger, by many givers. At Christmas, it seems appropriate to give thanks to a few of those who have worked hard for a little dream - not yet an Establishment - trying to get born:

To Bob McCausland, a coach who devotes more hours and energies than one can count to ECC basketballers. His pay so far has been lots of lost sleep, possible ulcers, and surely some fun.

To his chargers, the Cowboys, potential giant-slayers, working hard in a land of towering sharpshooters and well-organized athletic departments.

To the Cowboy Boosters - don't lose faith; just keep the money flowing. Someday, no doubt, you will have special seats in a Cowboy gym.

To one of the biggest of men from one of the unfrilliest and smallest of colleges - to our man in Las Vegas, a real giver with a real bankroll and a heart and eye for needy and, we think, worthwhile causes.

To the Fleischmann folk, those mysterious givers, wise men of the West, whose grant has helped to make our now thriving library the light of all northeastern Nevada.

To Betsy and Eva, who have had so much irksome pleasure trying to spend the Fleischmann money wisely, traveling to distant places to get books, having them missent, cataloging those that arrive, checking them out and in, watching over us like angels. Next summer we will have watermelon on the asphalt, a kind of splendour without grass. In the meantime, let our collection of Indian Americana grow bigger.

To the well-traveled Harold Judge, repairman of all our electronics devices, teacher of electronics at ECC, at Elko High, at the NYTC, teacher of adult education at Duck Valley. Some day you will be assigned an official coffee break to interrupt that 18-hour schedule.

To Sue Ballew, donor of time, energy, business acumen, and drapes for the no-longer barren faculty lounge. You who are, or have been, advisor and secretary to presidents, bookstore manager (unofficial, though accountable, of course), even registrar, and person in charge of petty cash - we await your memoirs, but please don't retire though you be housewife and mother and member of the choir.

To John and Jack, shepherds in this gaunt old building - you may have done more than anyone by painting, by wiring, by building photography labs, by polishing floors, by setting up a language lab, by making trips to faraway places in an antique truck that is one of our frills. For you both, the Max Rafferty award for conservative basics.

To that mysterious "spokesman", often referred to in the Elko Daily Free Press. Is you one or is you many?

To the Free Press for many favors, though your space has been more generous than your editorial thoughts about collegians.

To Russ Lundgren, recent serious editorialist in these pages, mathematician, computer expert, and boxing coach (for free you ranting kids).

To Bill Payne, recently from Nam, an evangelical sprite and guitarist who is bound to teach a lot of expertise in guitar methods to local folk who want to learn.

To our Indian brethren - Custer died for somebody's sins because he got hit in a vital place.

To Lloyd Privitt, the Careys, Karen McDade, Tigger Burgess, Ron Gilliam, Ivora Shaw, Ernestine Moore - to all the faithful of the work-study force. You have did good.

To our one, lonely radical lost in our protective provincialism. Since you don't have long hair, we can't even pick you out; but we know, as the Silent Majority knows, that you are less than five per cent of our herd. Just don't you try to seize and occupy any of our buildings.

To the fellow who signed up for Museology 101 last fall. Some day it is bound to make.

To all freshman composition students who by now must be sick of the word rhetoric.

to all of those who have given:

- the part-time instructors whose reward must be in the giving since it's certain it can't be in the money
 - to the kindly lady who is donating all her Butterick patterns and Reader's Digest magazines to our learning resource center
 - to cheerleaders who lead cheers
 - to teachers who are always on the firing line, teaching
 - to students who try
 - to a community of givers
- To everybody, some power, at least, and Merry Christmas.
ALL FUN TO THE PEOPLE.

Basque Books Arrive At College Library

Approximately 300 books have arrived for the Basque section of the library at Elko Community College.

The library will house from 400-500 Basque books making it one of the largest Basque collections in the country, according to Charles Greenhaw, coordinator of the effort to develop a Basque studies section.

Suggestions for the type of Basque books needed for the ECC collection came from the Basque Studies Program at the University of Nevada Reno, the University of Idaho and members of the Elko Basque Club.

The University of Idaho and UNR have the two largest Basque book collections in the country, Greenhaw stated.

The books were ordered through Libreria Manterola, a distributor in San Sebastian, Spain.

Subjects included in the ECC collection are business, poetry, literary works, history, songs, cooking, language records, Basque sports, and children's books.

Most of the texts are in Basque or Spanish, but a few are in English.

The books were ordered last June and the first shipment arrived in late Fall, Greenhaw stated. About 100 or so books are still expected to be shipped.

A room has been set aside at the new ECC campus for special Basque studies center and the books will be placed there, Greenhaw stated.

Anyone with a college library card can check out books from the Basque collection, he concluded.

NEVADA CLOSE-UP

BY SENATOR FLOYD LAMB

There are two sides to everything, they say.

And there are two ways to examine the University of Nevada's budget request in relation to the governor's recommendations — as a reduction from the university's request, or as an increase over the previous biennium.

Before we go any further, I want to stress that the Senate Finance Committee has not reduced any of the University budget from that recommended by the governor. It will probably get through our committee without any downward revision.

Looking at the budget one way, the recommendations represent a $20 million or 32.4 per cent reduction from the request. But looking at it the other way, there's a $7.8 million or 19 per cent increase over the previous biennium, which, incidentally, compares with a projected increase in enrollment of 19 per cent over the biennium.

We might also note here that even with no new taxes, the University System has commanded a larger share of the state's General fund revenues — 17.2 per cent for the 1971-73 biennium, compared with 16.4 per cent for the current biennium.

There are four areas that have come under specific criticism: faculty numbers, faculty salaries, library acquisitions and new programs. The entire subject is much too important to treat lightly, so we will discuss each of these areas fully this week and next.

The University planned to achieve a student-faculty ratio of 20:1 by 1980, moving from 17.8:1 in 1972. However, the current ratio is now 19:1. If professionals such as deans, directors and teaching assistants were included, the ratio would be substantially lower. The governor has recommended that rather than reduce the ratio, the University move to the 20:1 goal in the next biennium.

Applying this to the projected full-time equivalent students, the result would be a reduction of 21 faculty positions at UNR and an increase of 21 for UNLV in 1971-72, and an increase of 16 for each in 1972-73.

This recommendation does not necessarily mean that any existing positions must be terminated. For instance, 15 positions are recommended to be transferred to the Western Nevada Community College, seven of the current authorized positions are vacant and normal attrition will account for at least another 20 vacancies. No faculty member need be terminated as a result of this recommendation.

There seems to be some justification for increasing the faculty load as an alternative to larger class sizes. Another alternative to increased class sizes is a reduction in the number of relatively small classes offered — those that require an instructor for five students as opposed to those that require an instructor for a large number of students.

The Board of Regents has adopted a faculty salary goal which would rank equal to fourth place among Western public universities. The University salary request originally called for an increase of 8 per cent annually.

But based on increases currently being recommended in other Western states, the recommendation here is for a 1.3 per cent increase in average salaries in 1971-72 and an additional 5 per cent in 1972-73. The University has since revised its request, incidentally, to an annual increase of 6.5 per cent, based apparently on the average raise granted from 1969-70 to 1970-71.

This school year, the average University of Nevada salary is $17,757, ranking fourth in the West and comparing with the overall average of $13,465. The recommendation for 1971-72 of $18,489 compares with the overall average of $13,645, and the 1972-73 recommendation of $19,413 compares with the recommended overall average in Western universities of $14,327.

Full Accreditation Step For Community College

Nevada State Journal 9-26-72

Western Nevada Community College (WNCC) may achieve the rank of candidacy in December, the second step on the way to full accreditation.

Two members of the Northwest Regional Accrediting Association, Dr. Frederick Giles of the University of Washington and Dr. James Bemis, executive secretary of the association, were in Northern Nevada observing the college last week.

Dr. Charles Donnelly, president of the Community College Division of the University of Nevada, said the team also visited Clark County Community College. It also is seeking the rank of candidacy.

Elko Community College already has candidacy standing, Donnelly said. "We have an accreditation visit scheduled in May, 1974. To receive accreditation we need our own buildings and we already have two under construction, and one is half completed."

WNCC is scheduled to have a facility on its Carson City property in 1974, also.

Dr. Jack Davis, vice president of WNCC, said, "We could be fully accredited by 1975."

"The accrediting committee will decide at its annual meeting in December whether to make us a candidate. Right now we are a correspondent."

"The accrediting team reviewed our program and offerings. They looked into the background of staff members. They talked to the student body officers about their likes and dislikes. They looked into our organizational structure, and looked at our physical plants."

The team visited the Carson

City building, the Stead campus, and the combined Washoe County School District-WNCC classes at Reno and Wooster high schools.

Davis said, "They said they were very pleased at the cooperation between the community college and the school district. They said the cooperation was unique, but was a strong point."

Elko Daily Free Press 4-3-73 Marfisi Backs ECC Fund Bill

CARSON CITY (AP) — The chairman of the Elko Community College Advisory Board today backed a bill appropriating $176,000 for equipment for the college.

Mike Marfisi told the Assembly Ways and Means Committee that "without the equipment, the buildings are like a car without an engine."

But University of Nevada Chancellor Neil Humphrey told the committee the advisory board had been warned about probable legislative "displeasure" if prior equipment funds went into construction spending.

The lawmakers appropriated $375,000 two years ago to construct and equip two buildings for the college, but the board, faced with a shortage of construction funds, used part of the equipment allocation to complete the first building and start the second.

"When you get our figure it will really be bare bones," Assemblyman Randall Capurro, R-Reno, told Marfisi. The committee took no final action on the bill.

It is AB 497.

(Year-end review)

It wasn't really a "ho-hum" year at ECC, but it wasn't exactly bullish either. I mean, of course, 1972.

During the year, we did get two doctors on the staff. One is Dave Emerson, the biologist. The other is part-timer Greg Corn, a "juris doctor of law." Greg teaches classes in law enforcement and speech. This year we also obtained Shelley Hanna, an Oxford man by way of the University of North Dakota. Shelley used to be dean of Maryland University's European extension division.

In 1972 we enrolled students from exotic lands and ordinary states. They came from Iran, Spain, Canada, England, Mexico, Germany. They came from California, Oregon, Arizona, Utah, Idaho and Texas. We also had a student from Puerto Rico.

At spring commencement, the largest ever of ECC's graduating classes marched across the stage. There was no official commencement speaker, but nobody protested strongly.

Also in the spring of 1972, groundbreaking ceremonies held on the old golf course for the new college buildings initiated what the chairman of the board of regents called the "end of the beginning" for Elko Community College.

In the realm of the unusual, or even unique: — The college offered a course in the Shoshone language at the Duck Valley Reservation. Part of the fare was learning to write Shoshone, but students also recorded native songs and tales. Eventually the recorded materials will go into the library for posterity. — Also, we started a course in the Basque tongue. Thirty persons, many of them Basques, enrolled in the Euskera class taught by Jesus Lopategui. — Through the fall, "Civilization," the prize-winning BBC film, was in Elko, and every Friday night 20 or so faithful students watched it and then discussed it. — Last summer the first of what will probably be an annual convention of Nevada's Indian youth was held here. For three days in August, several hundred young Indians from over the state heard rousing speakers, participated in workshops and just got together.

In addition, 1972 had some outstanding individual success stories. One student, who doesn't want notoriety, was offered cash for her research paper on the Fort Ruby Ranch. Bill Woelz, student from Wells, has been notified that his paper on Metropolis will get published in a scholarly journal.

D. 30-72

During the summer, ECC was chosen to develop a pilot project in literacy training for adults. HEW granted the college $24,500 to teach illiterates and functional illiterates (those who don't read beyond grade level five) how to read. Hopes are that the ECC program can be used in other areas.

In the basketball year, the Cowboys won six games, most of them from Utah Tech, a team that should become our prize rival.

If 1972 wasn't particularly bullish, neither was it very humor-filled either. But a few things kept it from being absolutely grim. One was the spring Fishin' Derby at Wildhorse. A lot of people went and got skunked, except for the guy who drove his pickup into the lake. Then there's the case of the embarrassed driver who backed into our flagpole in the late summer. It almost buckled from the impact, but it stands yet, it's somewhat tilted and erratic. Finally, there's the case of a favorite art teacher, a most creative spirit who is known for finding all sorts of grotesqueries at the city dump and then turning them into things of beauty, with paint and imagination. Her daughter has told her kindergarten teacher, "My mom's the dump mother."

Let's have a cup of kindness for 1972.

On the Campus: The Basque collection, ordered last summer from Libreria Monterola in San Sebastian in the old World Basque country, has been dribbling in all fall and is now about complete. It includes cookbooks, dictionaries, industrial directories, songbooks, literature, folklore and histories of the Basque people from both sides of the Pyrenees. It just could be the largest Basque collection in the U.S., outside that housed at the Gatchell Library, UNR. The 300 or more volumes, as yet uncatalogued and non-circulating (except to those enrolled in the Euskera class), may be used in the ECC library. Once catalogued, any Elkoan with a library permit can have checkout privileges. To be a borrower of any of the nearly 20,000 items in the ECC library, just get yourself a borrowing card, by applying, in person, to the lender, Boyd Plumley, director of the resources center.

The reorganized Elko Boxing Club, whose bouts with other area clubs used to pack the auditorium at ECC with fans, is once again connected with the college, the sponsor, and Russ Lundgren, the coach. Russ reports that 20 fighters, including such stalwarts as Gary Prunty, are preparing daily after-school for the season's first boxing card with the Pocatello VFW boxers at the junior high gym on Dec. 23. Interested boys can still join, says Russ.

Exes: Bruce Bilbrey, '72 ECC grad, is now the mental health technician at the Mental Health center at the State Building... Pepper Sturm, Jr., class of '71, will graduate this spring from UNR, and his wife, the former Dana Gardner, class of '72, is also a UNR student. Several ECC exes, including Greg Crapo, Lester Preader, Aaron Tybo, and Ron Gilliam, are UNR-ers. Helen Hansen and Lewis Carey, class of '71, will both soon graduate from UNR.

Coming Up: Shelley Hanna, historian-anthropologist who led the popular discussions following the showing of the prize-winning "Civilization" series during the fall term, has planned a two-credit course, "The American Revolution, 1776-1783," for the interim term, Jan. 3-26... Stan Aiazzi has mapped out an agribusiness tour, in cooperation with the UNR Ag school, for the interim session. The tour-course, carrying college credit, commences locally on Sunday, Jan. 7, joins a UNR ag group early on Monday, Jan. 8, and moves on to various California sites where the group will study technical aspects of contemporary ag-economics. Planned are visits to the operations department of the Bank of America, to a San Francisco shipping concern which imports agricultural products, to a vineyard and winery, to a central market which sells for the California foods cornucopia, to a slaughterhouse specializing in both sheep and beef. Interested? Call Stan, 738-7241.

Dr. Dave Emerson, ECC biologist, is offering a special lab techniques course in water analysis during the interim period. Dave says that the class will, among other things, look into the water purity of the Humboldt, local streams, Wildhorse, and your tap water.

Dorothy Call will conduct a mini-course in consumer economics after New Year's. Some topics: Buying everything from groceries to used cars and homes. Purpose: To help you to live better by spending less and spending wisely. For more information about the January interim program, call the college, 738-7241.

Elko Community College

On the Campus: When Delna Day led her present group of LPN trainees into the annual capping ceremony at ECC a couple of weeks ago, the program served to remind that this present class of nurses is the 14th since the program began. The ceremony was in part a symbol, an occasion to reflect on what the program has accomplished and what it means to the community.

The LPN program started in 1957. That year, Margaret Clevenger, now with the state department of education, was the coordinator-instructor. Nine students from the original class graduated a year later, in 1958. Most of the students from that first class went to other communities and other states to work, but at least one LPN remained to work at Elko General Hospital, setting something of a trend that has broadened steadily over the years and has underlined what must have been the idea behind the original vision of the program.

The following year, Mary Rang, RN, became the instructor-coordinator. In the two years she headed the program, 18 LPNs were graduated. About half of them continued at Elko General.

In 1960-61, no LPN classes were held, but the following year Delna Day, RN, assumed leadership, and she has been the coordinator ever since. During the years that Delna has guided the nursing training, the program has flourished; nearly 70 more LPNs have been trained. More than half of them have been employed at Elko General, which last year needed 56 full-time and part-time nurses. Most of the others have gone on to work in other communities—in Winnemucca, Tonopah-Hawthorne, Battle Mountain, Owyhee, Sparks, Ogden, Utah, and Burns, Oregon. They work in hospitals, in clinics, in doctors' offices, and in private households. Some have gone on to become RNs.

The LPN program has been a stable and respectable one. Only one or two of the students have failed the state board exam after completing the intensive study.

The program has developed soundly for a number of reasons. On the one hand, there was a need to be met—there was a shortage of nurses in the area. Also, the community and the staff of Elko General encouraged area residents to acquire training, to obtain it locally and, therefore, less expensively. But no less important has been the devotion of Delna Day. She has brought a tough efficiency, blended with care and understanding, to her classes.

It should be pointed out also that the LPN training has attracted many students from minority, disadvantaged and undertrained groups. In effect, then, two great needs have been served: the community need for nurses has been met and the need for occupational training for the disadvantaged has been served in a dignified way.

In all, the community has benefited.

Community College Presentation Sunday

Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology" will be presented at the third annual Elko Community College Reader's Theatre at 8 p.m. Sunday at the college gym, Eighth and Court Streets.

The "Anthology," which first appeared in 1915, is a series of poetic monologues by 244 former inhabitants (both real and imagined) of Spoon River, an area near Lewistown and Petersburg, Ill., where Masters spent much of his boyhood.

All in the cast are dead and from their graves they speak their own epitaphs, discovering and confessing the real motivations of their lives.

The theatre is under the direction of Charles Greenhaw, English professor; Sarah Campsey, art instructor, is in charge of art. Other program credits go to Bob Edgar, slides; Barbara Mead, lights; and Greg Greenhaw and Sherrill Tatomer, music.

Songs and music played and sung by Miss Tatomer and Greg Greenhaw include "Dueling Banjos," "The Hill," "Spoon River," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Don't it make you want to go home," "The Water is Wide," and "In the Night."

Playing the various characters in the "Anthology" are Bill Woelz, Shelley Hanna, Fred Pascarelli, Macksene Jensen, Debbie Braithwaite, Dennis Rogers, Sarah Campsey, Dave Emerson, Carolyn Rand, Chris Morris, Sue Saunders and Charles Greenhaw.

Also to be held in conjunction with the theatre are the annual ECC awards presentations.

Shelley Hanna will serve as master of ceremonies and special recognition will be given to the outstanding scholar and outstanding student at the college.

Awards will also be given in the following areas: art, developmental, English, nursing and general education development.

The Aggie Club will also present an award and presentations of a right-to-read plaque, student handbook award and recognition of achievement will be made.

An arts and crafts exhibit, featuring more than 250 items made by students in Sarah Campsey's art classes, will be on display during the Reader's Theatre.

The public is invited to attend the production and admission is free.

THIS YEAR'S ELKO Community College Reader's Theatre will present Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology," poetic monologues about the author's former home. The "Anthology" is under the direction of Charles Greenhaw, ECC English instructor. Pictured rehearsing for the production

On the Campus: The ECC Aggie Club, whose leader is Stan Aiazzi, is bent on publicizing the college. Notice the club's new blue jackets, appearing around town. The jackets have a Crazy Cow imprinted on the back and also bear the inscription "Where the sidewalk ends and the West begins," the idea being that the West, especially the Elko County West, is to be preferred over cement. But these doings are not all the inspired Aggies, one of the most active groups on campus, have in mind. They also plan to plant billboards somewhere around the city's outskirts, saying that ECC is "Nevada's First Community College—901 Elm". A lot of folk who ate barbecued lamb, marinated in wine, at Lamoille

Grove at the Aggies' spring feast last May are hoping that they will again show their goodwill along with their tasty outdoor cooking this spring.

As for 901 Elm, where the new buildings are going up, nobody knows for sure just when the college will move, after several years of renting, to the permanent address. Original hopes were that the vocational classes, along with the administrative offices, would move into the Phase I building (there's no real name for it yet) late in January of the new year. Other college programs — the learning resources center, the liberal arts classes, the learning lab, the child development center and the applied arts center — were to move into the second building next summer. But well-laid plans go awol, sometimes, on account of slow shipment of materials, frigid weather, or cataclysm. So movements get rescheduled. Even so, Phase I should be finished and sparkling this spring and Phase II shouldn't be far behind. Barring catastrophe, ECC will have a home of its own when school opens for the '73-'74 year.

Hewitt Wells, the Reno artist and architect who likes the fly fishing in these parts and who designed the new ECC structures, said at the very beginning that these buildings are going to be the most interesting designs in Elko — buildings such as you see pictured on the cover of the telephone directory. Looks as if Hewitt was right, for people are already taking notice and talking. They are asking about those appurtenances rising from the top of the vocational building. Someone called them ventilators; another person wondered if they were solar radiators.

Exes: Siamak Safaei, the Persian who learned English here, cooked at Benny's Restaurant, and entertained both as a ping-pong champ and violinist, is working toward a degree in aerospace engineering in Oklahoma. Jody Dwyer, basketballer on the '70-'71 team, is getting close to a degree from UNLV. So is Adrienne Joseph, who attended ECC in '70-'71. Lynn Cunningham, ex-ECC basketballer, has been enrolled in UNR.

Coming up: What could in time become a stormy inter-tribal rivalry may begin shaping up if the Cowboy basketballers play Western Nevada Community College here during the ECC Invitational tournament set for Jan. 26-27. Participating will be Treasure Valley (Oregon), Rangely (Colorado), Western Nevada and ECC. This may be the first ever sports competition between the fledgling Nevada community colleges.

Dr. Charles Donnelly, president of the Community College Division, will conduct a seminar, "Organization and Administration of Community College" at ECC. The class, carrying two graduate credits, will commence on Jan. 8, for details, call the college.

On the Campus: "Perhaps it would have been better if we could have given it a more fitting name," says John Nield, an ECC psychology instructor whose main interest is child behavior. Nield was, of course, referring to ECC's Child Development Center, that colorful, bustling complex in rooms 10 and 11. "A lot of people," Nield believes, "have got the idea that the CD center is just another day-care facility. But it's a lot more than that."

Actually, the child development program at ECC is an integrated series of courses and activities designed to help college students and parents better understand why a child behaves the way he does. For the college student, who may some day work with pre-schoolers, there are courses that deal with the outstanding theorists in the field. But there are also courses in which the student observes and works directly with children — and their families too.

"We want students to learn from the theorists, but we also want them to see the child in action," says Nield. "We want students to know what a child gets out of his behavior — say, for example, temper tantrums." When a child throws a tantrum, he's probably been educated to do it. Somebody has fed into this behavior by giving the child what he wants. The result: negative behavior hasn't been modified. In the practicum courses, students learn not to feed negative behavior. They learn something very difficult — to ignore it."

Parent education is also a part of the program. In a course called "Individual and the Family", the focus is on child and parent interactions. A part of the course is "Family on Focus." Families bring children to the center, and learn the why's of child behavior. But more than that, they begin to understand how they themselves feed negative and positive behavior. For example, parents are often unaware of the fact that they encourage unhealthy competition between brothers and sisters.

"Now, I don't want to imply that we aren't interested in the pre-schoolers, and that the program is concerned only with college students and parents," says Nield. "Our program for children is thorough and the staff, led by Betty Kaiser, is professional. As a matter of fact, Georgia Hastings, consultant on elementary and pre-school education for the Nevada Department of Education, has said that the ECC program for pre-schoolers is one of the best in the state."

Apparently Elko parents are satisfied, for the center is now operating at capacity enrollment, and no more applications for children to get into the program are being taken.

Exes: Dan Wornek, '72 ECC grad in corrections, is attending UNR. John Wilson, another '72 ECC grad in corrections, is bound for UNR. Linda Headley, who studied here in '71-'72 is enrolled at Weber State. Shelley Adair, also '71-'72, is now at Southern Utah, where she plays girls' varsity basketball.

Coming Up: Don White and John Nield have taped a series of question-and-answer programs called "You and Your Child," to be aired on KELK. If Elko's response is positive — which means, if you have questions — the program will be regular. Call them in to John Nield....The Elko Boxing Club travels to Stewart for its next series of matches on January 19.

On the Campus: Three years ago most people who visited the ECC library came away shocked at its poverty. Scattered around the floors were a few boxes of books donated by local well-wishers. In addition, some Elkoans had given the library some nearly complete collections of "National Geographic" and "Life." Mostly, however, the shelves were so barren that one visitor predicted, "You'll never have a library here."

Today's visitors are still amazed at the library, but for a different reason. In three years it has become a "now" library, the showplace of the college. Shelves are mostly packed, the reference section is exemplary for a small college, and there are some special collections that would make any fledgling college boastful.

What happened in just three years to make the ECC library (it's a "learning resource center" in community college jargon) an up-to-date facility? First, there was a lot of hard work on the part of Betsy Sturm. Then the Fleischmann Foundation, which has a special fondness for libraries, granted the college a $100,000 nest egg. This money, plus the interest gained from the investment, helped to turn the center into a thriving concern. Where earlier there was little possibility for a college student to research a project, now the library staff says the center houses nearly 20,000 items, including about 17,000 books. With other gifts and grants, the staff has added an adequate inventory of audio-visual materials and equipment.

In three years, then, much has changed. Even the donated volumes of "Life" have gained in value, oddly enough, at a time when that magazine's fortunes have been eclipsed.

Among the special interest features of the library are collections that have caught the attention of visitors from distant places. One of these is the American Indian collection, which has received considerable acclaim and use. It now contains about 700 volumes on practically every aspect of native American life. Notable also is the section on art. Also, there is a growing number of books and documents about Nevada. Some of the Nevada books are "rare," according to Boyd Plumley, director of the resource center.

In terms of numbers of volumes the ECC library is probably the finest in the area, perhaps the finest within a radius of 200 miles. When in the upcoming summer it is moved into the second of the new college buildings, the library will have the amount of space needed and a technical and aesthetic value to obtain a good audience and to please it.

A spaghetti lunch, a mining town picture, games, handwork and good fellowship made a delightful afternoon for 54 seniors at the Senior Citizens Center on Wednesday, March 7.

Charley and Ethel Paul, assisted by Ann Littlefield and Madelyn O'Donnell, prepared and served spaghetti, flavored with Charlie's own special brand of sauce, to an overflow group of seniors. To complement spaghetti, Angelina Aguerri, Hazel Parker and other center participants brought in hot-rolls, salads and cakes. Following the lunch pinochle, bridge and bingo, to the accompaniment of much laughter and noise, was enjoyed in the clubroom. The workers of the group, those doing knitting, crochet and other hand work were crowded out and had to spend their time in the hallway. Never mind girls, we are going to have another room soon where you industrious ones can work quietly.

Jarbidge Slides by Hickson

The real treat of the afternoon came at three o'clock when Mr. Howard Hickson, director of the Northeastern Nevada Museum, arrived with his automated slides showing the development and history of Jarbidge. Room was made for the workers to join the players for this pleasant and enjoyable half hour of entertainment. We are looking forward to more afternoons of Elko county pictorial history which Mr. Hickson told us are in the process of being developed.

Betty Kaiser Program March 14
Mrs. Betty Kaiser, director of the child development center at the Elko Community College, will present a program at the Center on March 14. Her afternoon class of four-year-olds will do one of their original puppet shows for our entertainment. Mrs. Kaiser will show a video tape portraying the work of the Development School and the children in attendance. The program will start at 1:30 p.m.

Music Coming Up

Mrs. Oren Probert and Mrs. Wayne Skeem, those lovely ladies of music, have promised the seniors a joyful afternoon in the near future. Each senior was asked to list a song of his or her choice which they would like to join in singing at an old time "Song Feast" soon. The response was enthusiastic and if all the songs listed are sung we will have many seniors with croaking voices.

We are promised a happy surprise on this same afternoon. One of our very dear seniors has promised to give us a solo on the harmonica.

3-20-73 EI
Monday, March 19, was a day of excitement, happy expectation, great fun and good humor at the Senior Citizen Center. At 12:00 noon about 40 seniors helped themselves to hot roast venison, prepared by Ruth Toral, a marinated tomato dish, prepared by Linda Loveless, and various other dishes brought in by seniors. (Thank you all).

Promptly at 1:30 the "Monday-Master-of-Ceremonies" Fred Faupel, was greeted by a hearty cheer as he entered the Center room. He picked up the big, cardboard box containing the raffle stubs and giving it a vigorous shake, said "Who wins the afgahn?" With Anna holding the box high he reached in, drew out a ticket, glanced at it and calmly said "Fred Faupel." A gasp went up from 40 seniors. Then he passed the winning ticket to Anna who read out the name: Madeline Neitz of 336 Oak Street. "Congratulations, Madeline, we hope you enjoy the afgahn and that you become a wonderful Senior Citizen, bye and bye."

With the drawing over the seniors settled down to the serious business of bingo. First, five preliminary games with a variety of small prizes. Among the winners were Violet Abbeglin, who won a bead necklace set, and Jerry Davis winning merchandise credits from Lundberg's and Builders Mart plus a $5 bonus for wearing his POW bracelet. Then the big game which has been running 22 weeks. Today, cover your card in 62 numbers or less and win $50! The suspense grows, Fred announces, "This is your 62nd number, 72." "BINGO!" Ethel Venturino has won! the crowd cheers. The big game is over.

Another Big One To Start

Next Monday, March 26, a new game will start with a prize of $100. Cover your card next Monday with 40 numbers or less and you win the prize. The numbers will increase by one every week until the prize is won. Come join the fun and maybe, if you are lucky, you will win the big jackpot during the next year — maybe in time to buy your Christmas gifts. The fun and good fellowship is the really great prize to be won by all.

Remember the big "Song Fest" at the Center next Wednesday, March 28. Be thinking of all the old familiar songs you want to join in singing.

May closed gloriously for the Elko County Senior Citizens with the trip to the Carlin Gold Mine for 33 participants and the calendar for June promises many pleasures.

Trip Coming Up

A trip to Spring Creek with dinner and a tour of the facility has been tentatively set for June 20, a trip to Tuscarora and the museum, they will be made in the latter part of the month — watch this column for definite arrangements for these events.

June Birthdays

The June birthday party will be given on Friday, June 15. Mark this date and be sure to celebrate with us.

A beautiful cross-stitch, embroidery bed spread is now on display at the Center and will soon be displayed in windows down town. This spread is the result of the work and generosity of three Center participants. Mrs. Emily Landon Enderholl, who was a very active participant of the Center when it first opened and who now lives in Keene, Texas; Mrs. Pearl Boyd; and Mrs. Rose Burner. Emily donated the stamped blocks for the spread; Pearl did the embroidery, and only a person who does cross-stitch can appreciate the hours of painstaking work this required; Rose put the spread together and completed it as only Rose could do with her own quilting design and perfect stitches. This spread, truly an art object, will be given as a raffle prize soon. The proceeds from the raffle will be used for the use of the Center in their many projects.

Ten little girls and boys from the Child Development Center of the Elko Community College provided an unusual and delightful diversion for the Senior Citizens on Wednesday afternoon. Accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. Betty Kaiser and her assistant, these little four-year-old children entered the center room and quietly wandered among the group of 35 people saying "Hi" and "Hello" and answering questions. Each child wore a name tag and was very pleased to be spoken to by name. At a signal from Betty they returned to the front of the room and seated themselves on the floor. For about 30 minutes they charmed their audience with a series of puppet acts. They responded to the cheers of their audience with shy smiles and cute little giggles. As they were leaving each child was given a Dixie cup and cookies for enjoyment later. Mrs. Kaiser extended an invitation to the Senior Citizens to visit the Child Development Center to observe the children in their regular activities.

Monday at Center . . . Bingo!

Monday is always a big day at the Center. March 19 will be extra special! That big bingo prize is yet to be won by some lucky player and you might be the one — don't miss it. In fact you might be two time winner because the lucky ticket will be drawn for the Afgahn. Remember the date — March 19!

March Birthday . . . Friday

Sixteen names are on the list for honor at the birthday party — tomorrow — Friday the 16th. Be sure to come, meet your friends and enjoy the lunch and special birthday cake.

While you are marking your calendar for special events . . . remember March 28. That is the date for the "Big Song Fest."

The Center is humming with activity this month. At each opening we have the Busy Bees cutting and sewing strips for the rugs while the Drones enjoy themselves at the bridge and the pinochle tables all accompanied by the steady beat of the loom and the music of record player. Anna Littlefield has returned from her trip to Arizona and Hawaii and with her help the hot lunches are much more attractive and flavorful.

Following the wonderful trip to the Carlin Gold Mine on May 31, the Center participants have been filled with a wanderlust that can only be satisfied with more trips over the countryside. Thanks to the management of Spring Creek and our patron saint, Fred Faupel, we have been invited to spend Wednesday, June 20, touring the Spring Creek development area and having lunch at the Western Village.

Thirty-six Seniors have signed up to make the trip. The bus will leave the Center at 10:00 a.m. Be sure to be on time.

The anticipated trip to Tuscarora and the visit to Phillips Museum will be taken on Friday, June 29. This will be a paper-sack lunch day with everyone becoming a school child again and carrying his own lunch. Cold soft drinks will be supplied. The hour for leaving the Center will be announced later.

Remember the Birthday Party next Friday (tomorrow). This promises to be a "red letter day" with special music by our own Violet and some surprise birthday guests from Lamoille and Carlin. Don't miss the fun.

Every Senior Citizen having a birthday during the month of May is invited to a birthday party and dinner at the Elko County Senior Citizens Center on Friday, May 18. Each of you would receive a personal invitation if we knew your name. Dinner will be served at 12 noon. A photographer will be on hand to take pictures which Mr. Bernard Sadowsky will send to a national publication for community colleges. The Northern Nevada Community College seems to be quite unique in its sponsorship of a Senior Citizen Center. Come and join our fun and be a part of this organization — we need all of you.

Harry Fuller, member of the 5/17/73

Senior Citizen Advisory Board, has completed arrangements for the trip to the Carlin Gold Mine on Thursday, May 31. All Seniors planning to make the trip will meet at the Center on Thursday morning. The bus will leave at 10:00 a.m. Each senior will bring a sack lunch for himself. Cold drinks will be furnished for everyone. A guided trip through the mine will be the main event of the day with a view of the work and tunnel building on the highway through Carlin canyon.

A list of those planning the trip is on the bulletin board at the center. If your name is not on the list please put it there so that plans may be completed. The bus and driver for the trip is being furnished by the college.

John McSweeney, director of the Division of Aging Services for Nevada, will visit the Senior Citizen Center this afternoon (Thursday) to get acquainted with the participants and discuss plans for future development. A representative of the area office of A.S. will accompany Mr. McSweeney. We are sorry that our visitors will not arrive in time to enjoy the noon lunch which is being prepared by Gloria Faupel from those lovely beef roasts supplied by the Elko County CowBelles.

Floor Loom Up

As planned last week the floor loom has been set up in the Center ready to be dressed for the weaving of rugs. This will be done this weekend by volunteers from the seniors. Thanks to the Elko Motel we now have about 20 bed spreads ready for dyeing, cutting and sewing for warp. We are now looking forward to having a six-harness loom for weaving pattern material. Watch our business grow!

May Birthdays the 18th

Friday, May 18, will be the date for celebration of May birthdays. At present we have a list of ten seniors who will be honored on that day. Any senior whose birthday falls in May is given a very special invitation to come to the party, enjoy the lunch and birthday cake, enjoy the good fellowship of your friends and give them the pleasure of your company.

Mark May 31 on Calendar

May 31 is a date for all seniors to mark on the calendar. Weather permitting, we will make a picnic-bus trip to the Carlin Gold Mine on that date. Full plans for the trip will be announced in later columns. Watch for details!

It's great to be a Senior Citizen in Elko County! This was demonstrated to 42 seniors yesterday when they were taken on a bus tour of the Spring Creek Development Area. Shortly before 10 a.m. an Elko Stage Line bus driven by Mr. Probasco arrived at the Center where he was met by two representatives of the Spring Creek project, Darrell Purcell and Walt Thornton. For the next four hours these gentlemen did everything possible to make 40 eager seniors comfortable and happy. They helped us on and off the bus, told us the story of Spring Creek, pointed out the places of interest such as: the lovely new homes, the reception center, the golf course club house and the view of the area from that vantage point, and the animal farm (where even the animals seemed anxious to co-operate in making it a beautiful day).

Upon our arrival at the Western Village, a quaint replica of an old western town, we spent some time wandering over the area, peeking in windows and reading the billboards and signs. Then the climax of a perfect morning! We were treated to a delightful buffet lunch prepared by a very efficient, young, enthusiastic chef, Jim French, whose lovely wife, Lee Anne, is the granddaughter of one of our own seniors, Julia Arranguena. Leah and Sherry, the two lovely girls who served us were so gracious they made a bright day even brighter.

The Senior Citizens say "Thank You" to the McCullough Co; to our tour guides, Darrell and Walt; to Jim, Lee Anne and Baby James; to Leah and Sherry; and to our driver, Mr. Probasco, for a perfect day. Last but by no means least, we thank the Elko Chamber of Commerce for allowing its manager and our "Guardian Angel" to set up this tour for us. Thank you, Fred Faupel!

A reminder, the next Senior Citizen tour will be June 29 to Tuscarora. It will be a package lunch trip in the "Cowboy Bus." Time for leaving Elko will be announced next week.

Tickets for the Cross Stitch Coverlet drawing are now on sale. The proceeds from the sale will be used for the hot lunch program at the Center. The coverlet will be placed on display down town June 21. Hope you like it and buy tickets!

Monday, July 2, will be regular Bingo Day with "with cover your card in 52 numbers or less for the big prize." The usual hot lunch will be served at 12 noon on that day.

Pillow Making, July 6

Mrs. Mary Coleman will be at the Center on Friday, July 6, to teach a class in pillow making to the Busy Bees. Bring a Velour Turkish towel in your favorite color or thread to match the towel, and be ready to make a beautiful pillow. The size of your pillow will depend upon the size of the towel — no other material is used.

WANTED: — Seniors whose birthday falls in July! The monthly birthday party is being planned for Wednesday, July 18, and from the signatures on the bulletin board it appears that we might just have to sing "Happy Birthday" to each other. However, we will have a happy celebration on that day.

"Swede" and Addie Flowers are joining us for the celebration of their wedding anniversary. Come everybody, and help us wish them many happy years to come!

Good News! —

The Senior City Advisory Board met Tuesday, July 10, and decided to immediately have air conditioners installed in each Center room. Those basement rooms get mighty warm these hot afternoons. Come to lunch and enjoy a cool afternoon with your friends and neighbors.

The Lamoille Grove has been reserved for a Senior Citizen picnic on Wednesday, July 25. Mark the date on your calendar and sign the list of those planning to go. The bus will probably leave the Center at 10:00 a.m. Definite plans will be announced next week. We extended a very cordial invitation to Lamoille friends to join us for a happy day.

Attention Senior Citizens!
Change of schedule next week!
The Center will not be open on Wednesday but will be open on Thursday, May 10. Mr. John McSweeney, Administrator for Aging Services, will be here on that day to visit and get acquainted with us and our activities. Lunch will be served at 12 noon followed by the regular games and program. Be sure to come and bring a friend. We are very anxious to have a good turnout that day.

Upon my return to the Center on Monday, April 30, I was truly thrilled to find the Seniors happily established in their expanded quarters. Another big, beautiful, comfortable room has been provided for our use by the Elko County Board of Education. It is just across the hallway from the one we have been using and now we have plenty of space to enlarge our activities and welcome double the number of participants. Our next big project is to get every Senior Citizen in the county coming to the Center and enjoying its privileges. We hope soon to have the Center open every day for some activity or just a place to stop and rest. More about that later.

It is planned to move a big floor loom to the center soon (this weekend, is possible). A class in loom dressing and weaving will be started. All Seniors interested in a job of busy work bring scissors and thread and needle to the Center on Thursday the 10th. We will have many blankets, coverlets, and other material to be cut for weaving. Wait for our big sale of hand loomed rugs to brighten up your home!

Next Wednesday, July 25, will be Senior Citizens' Picnic in Lamoille Grove. Meet at the center at 10 a.m. Private cars will be used to transport the "Cowboy Bus" overflow. All those who do not have a special assignment should bring sandwiches for five people. Special attention all Lamoille and vicinity Seniors! You are cordially invited to enjoy the day with us. Jerry is all ready to meet any contenders in a Horseshoe Contest!

Mrs. Sandy Williams will be at the center on Friday, July 20 (tomorrow) to teach anyone interested in the art of wig making (for dolls). We have several lovely dolls badly in need of a "crowning glory." Who knows, maybe this class will lead to a lucrative vocation. Come and learn!

Thanks to the speedy work of Charles Paul we are now enjoying all the comfort of cool weather at the center. Following the decision of the board to install air conditioners Charles lost no time and at the birthday party on Wednesday, July 18, 42 seniors enjoyed the pleasure of dining in perfect temperature.

Attention everyone! Those tickets are still on sale for the Cross Stitch Coverlet. If you haven't been approached just ask a Senior Citizen. And you seniors who have tickets for sale get busy — we will need the proceeds of these sales for those good lunches we enjoy at the center. Frances reports that sales are good but we have several books of tickets on hand.

The Cowboy Bus rolls again! Carrying a full load of 32 passengers and followed by two touring cars, the bus left the Senior Citizen Center at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, July 25, for Lamoille Grove. Arriving at the picnic grounds they were met by seniors of Lamoille including Orr and Virginia Johns, Tom and Gertrude Eager, Martha Peters, Thelma Flavin, "Swede" and Addie Flowers and their little granddaughter. They had coffee ready to serve, delicious fresh cherries just picked from the trees in the yard of Orr and Virginia (how those seniors did make away with them, and Tom had prepared his famous "shepherd" potatoes for all. In the cool shade on the spacious picnic tables a lunch of sandwiches, salads and cakes with coffee and cold drinks, was spread and enjoyed by more than 50 senior citizens. The afternoon was spent pitching horse shoes, playing bridge, pinochle, old maid, doing hand work, or just visiting with friends under the trees, and eating watermelon. About 4:30 p.m. the seniors arrived back at the Center, very tired but also very happy. Everyone pronounced the day perfect and many said "Let's do it again."

Pillow makers be sure to be on hand at the Center on Friday (tomorrow) July 27, for work. Mrs. Mary Coleman will be there to help up put in zippers. Bring your towels, scissors, needles and thread.

If you are not working on a pillow there will be carpet strips to cut and sew. 7/16/73 EJ

Elko Community College Report

12/29/72

By Charles Greenhaw
Elko Community College

(Year-end review)

It wasn't really a "ho-hum" year at ECC, but it wasn't exactly bullish either. I mean, of course, 1972.

During the year, we did get two doctors on the staff. One is Dave Emerson, the biologist. The other is part-timer Greg Corn, a "juris doctor of law." Greg teaches classes in law enforcement and speech. This year we also obtained Shelley Hanna, an Oxford man by way of the University of North Dakota. Shelley used to be dean of Maryland University's European extension division.

In 1972 we enrolled students from exotic lands and ordinary states. They came from Iran,

Spain, Canada, England, Mexico, Germany. They came from California, Oregon, Arizona, Utah, Idaho and Texas. We also had a student from Puerto Rico.

At spring commencement, the largest ever of ECC's graduating classes marched across the stage. There was no official commencement speaker, but nobody protested strongly.

Also in the spring of 1972, groundbreaking ceremonies held on the old golf course for the new college buildings initiated what the chairman of the board of regents called the "end of the beginning" for Elko Community College.

In the realm of the unusual, or even unique: — The college offered a course in the Shoshone language at the Duck Valley Reservation. Part of the fare was learning to write Shoshone, but students also recorded native songs and tales. Eventually the recorded materials will go into the library for posterity.

— Also, we started a course in the Basque tongue. Thirty persons, many of them Basques, enrolled in the Euskera class taught by Jesus Lopategui. — Through the fall, "Civilization," the prize-winning BBC film, was in Elko, and every Friday night 20 or so faithful students watched it and then discussed it. — Last summer the first of what will probably be an annual convention of Nevada's Indian youth was held here. For three days in August, several hundred young Indians from over the state heard rousing speakers, participated in workshops and just got together.

In addition, 1972 had some outstanding individual success stories. One student, who doesn't want notoriety, was offered cash for her research paper on the Fort Ruby Ranch. Bill Woelz, student from Wells, has been notified that his paper on Metropolis will get published in a scholarly journal.

During the summer, ECC was chosen to develop a pilot project in literacy training for adults. HEW granted the college $24,500 to teach illiterates and functional illiterates (those who don't read beyond grade level five) how to read. Hopes are that the ECC program can be used in other areas.

In the basketball year, the Cowboys won six games, most of them from Utah Tech, a team that should become our prized rival.

If 1972 wasn't particularly bullish, neither was it very humor-filled either. But a few things kept it from being absolutely grim. One was the spring Fishin' Derby at Wildhorse. A lot of people went and got stunked, except for the guy who drove his pickup into the lake. Then there's the case of the embarrassed driver who backed into our flagpole in the late summer. It almost buckled from the impact, but it stands yet, if somewhat tilted and erratic. Finally, there's the case of a favorite art teacher, a most creative spirit who is known for finding all sorts of grotesqueries at the city dump and then turning them into things of beauty, with paint and imagination. Her daughter has told her kindergarten teacher, "My mom's the dump mother."

Let's have a cup of kindness for 1972.

Liberalized Student Financial Aid Plans Listed By Elko College

In the past few months several significant changes have taken place in the area of student financial aids. As of the middle of this month, the college has received important guidelines to use in the operation of student financial aids for the coming year. The most important changes that have occurred are listed below.

Officials at Northern Nevada Community College feel that these changes and additions allow for more flexibility in program management, and most importantly make financial assistance more readily available to any eligible student desiring to obtain an education. In summary form, here are the changes in each program:

All programs (EOG, CWSP and NDSL)

Students enrolled half-time or more are eligible to apply (previously only full-time students were eligible).

National Direct Student Loan

Students may borrow up to $2500 for the first two years at an interest rate of 3%, which does not begin to accrue until nine months after the student has terminated his schooling — (previous loan limitations were $2,000 for the first two years). Minimum monthly payment after nine months is $30.

College Work-Study

The limitation is 15 hours of work per week during the academic periods has been removed. The student may now work as many hours as advisable in an academic week. There is no maximum on the number of hours students may work.

Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant

The amount of the grant has been increased from a maximum of $1000 per academic year to $1500. (The grant, however, cannot exceed, as in the past, one half the total amount of student financial aid provided by the institution).

The previous limitations of $9000 family income and $625 parental contribution are no longer in effect in determining eligibility.

All SEOG awards this fiscal year are initial grants.

Basic Educational Opportunity Grant

A new financial aid program. Based on a contribution to education (as determined by the application) a student may receive up to $1400 per academic year.

The Grant cannot exceed one-half of the financial need.

Basic Eligibility for the Grant:

- (1) Must be a first time enrollee in a post-high school program.
- (2) Attending school on a full-time basis.
- (3) A United States citizen or intend to become a resident, NOTE: you are not eligible if you have attended a post-high school educational institution at any time before July 1, 1973.
- (4) Completion of BEOG form.

Steps in Applying for Financial Assistance

1. Apply for Admission by contacting the Student Services Office at Northern Nevada Community College.
2. Request and complete a financial aid application, and
3. A Family Financial Statement form from the same office.
4. All financial awards are based in financial need as determined from the Family Financial Statement (this form will take approximately three weeks to process).

We hope the above information has been helpful. Further information and details obtained by calling Northern Nevada Community College, 738-8493, or stop at the Student Services Office located at 901 Elm street, Elko.

ECC Hosts High School Seniors

On May 9, Elko Community College hosted an open house for all high school seniors in Northern Nevada.

Nearly 100 students attended the function which was designed to have the senior high school students objectively view ECC's programs, faculty and students.

ASB President Barry Hensler welcomed the students and ASB Vice President Robert Lage spoke on student activities — past, present and future. Faculty members participated by discussing their individual programs with the seniors.

Also, the senior students toured the new campus buildings and Dr. Charles Donnelly, president of the Community College Division, spoke on the role of community colleges in Nevada.

Completion Of Test To Be Required

A spokesman for Elko Community College said today that beginning with the fall semester, the school will require that all full-time, regular students must have completed the ACT's Career Planning Profile examination.

The test will be administered at the college on July 11, from 1-5 p.m. and will cost $6.

The spokesman said that the purpose of the examination is to provide better program and career guidance to the college's students.

Anyone desiring more information about the new admission requirement can contact the Student Services Office at the college.

Workshop Scheduled At College

All interested students, counselors, human resource development specialists, and the public are invited to attend a Basic Opportunity Grant workshop conducted by Carol McKensie of the Office of Education Department, July 25 at 3 p.m., at Northern Nevada Community College.

The basic grants program is new to financial aids and it is hoped, through the operation of the BOG, to make a college education available for every person who desires it, a college spokesman said.

Teaching Job Is Open At College

Northern Nevada Community College announced today an opening for a supervisor of the Child Development Center for the 1973-74 school year, beginning Monday, August 27, 1973.

The supervisor's job will be a part-time faculty position which will require approximately 20 hours a week.

A four-year degree in Pre-school Education or Elementary Education and a workable knowledge of the Dreikurs approach to pre-school education are two of the qualifications for the position.
